Course Description:

Dental Office team members are often presented with conflicting information on how to treat and maintain waterlines in their practice. This course will discuss underlying biological causes of waterline colonization by microorganisms, differences in between bottle-fed and municipally supplied dental unit waterlines, and possible means of improving the quality of dental water.

Participants will learn:

- How biofilm is formed
- Facts on public health concerns and how to address them
- Differences between open and closed dental unit waterline systems
- How Dental Unit Waterline Treatments work and which products are available
